There are many teas in Japan, for example, coarse tea, barley tea, roasted green tea and, so on. Matcha is a very famous and traditional type of tea in Japan, and one that is quintessentially Japanese. Matcha was introduced over 800 years ago and has been used in traditional Japanese tea ceremony up until the present date. Matcha and noodles are both representative foods of Japan.

Matcha noodles is very good for health because both of these two healthy foods are put together in one dish. It is, therefore, a splendid food of Japan.
